Call for nominations and applications for the Editor-in-Chief of AAQR
(Aerosol and Air Quality Research)

Dear Members,

The term of the present Editor-in-Chief of AAQR, Prof. Chuen-Jinn Tsai, is ending in Feb. 28, 2011. The Journal Advisory Committee (JAC) is therefore soliciting nominations and applications for an Editor-in-Chief to take effect from March 1, 2011.

The Editor-in-Chief will be responsible for the scientific content of the journal. Candidates for the position should have prior editorial experience with a peer-reviewed journals and are willing to offer the significant commitment of time, expertise and resources that such a position requires. The terms of office of the Editor-in-Chief will be three years initially, with the expected possibility of renewal for a maximum of one further 3-year term.

Nominations (including self-nominations) should be sent to me, together with the short description of relevant qualifications and editorial experience, before the closing date for receiving the nominations, Jan. 31, 2011.

Best regards,

Ginny She
Assistant of Aerosol and Air Quality Research
